

Communication towers and aerial wildlife are creating problems for one another and we need more information and action on how to make the skies safe for birds again. The numbers of dead and uncertain number of injured birds documents the need to solve this problem and the number of towers rising on the landscape every week makes the solution urgent.